USfalcon Retirement

Morrisville, N.C. – USfalcon Inc announced the retirement of Major General, USA (Retired) Gerard “Jerry” Brohm, President of USfalcon. General Brohm has served with the company for over four and a half years as Chief Operating Officer (COO), Group President and President of USfalcon. He joined the company in 2007. General Brohm has spent a combined 45 years in service to his country in the U.S. Army and Defense contracting industry.

In his message to USfalcon employees General Brohm stated, “I am sad to be leaving such great people and excited about the prospect of spending more time with family.” In addition he added, “I could not have picked a better place to be at the end of my second career than USfalcon. The people in this organization are among the most professional and most competent I have ever had the privilege of working with.”

Pete von Jess, CEO USfalcon said, “Thank you to General Brohm for the leadership, guidance and professionalism that you brought to USfalcon these past four and half years. The respect you earned within the company and with our customers is unparalleled and will be missed by all in the daily operations. We are excited that you will continue with USfalcon as a member of our esteemed Board.”
