Russell K. Johnsen joins USfalcon as President

Morrisville, N.C. – The USfalcon Inc. Board of Directors has appointed Russell K. Johnsen as its corporate President commencing October 26, 2009. Mr. Johnsen currently serves as the Chairman of the Board for Mercury Computer Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: MRCY), a company which provides embedded computing systems and software for aerospace, defense, homeland security, telecommunications and other markets.

Mr. Johnsen previously was the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sirific Wireless Limited, a provider of integrated circuits for the telecommunications market. Prior to that, he co-founded and served as the CEO of the Octane Group, a private company that developed and operated a proprietary network of interactive display terminals. Previously he was Vice President/General Manager at Analog Devices, Inc., a supplier of high performance analog, mixed signal, and digital signal processing integrated circuits. He also served in various senior management capacities at National Semiconductor Corporation in California and in Southeast Asia. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

"Russ is exactly the right person to lead our Executive team," stated Pete von Jess, CEO, "He has a remarkable and strong track record of strategic growth in his former companies, and will utilize those experiences, capabilities, and relationships to drive our own exponential growth."

Mr. Johnsen said: "I am excited to join the terrific executive team at USfalcon. Together we can use the extraordinary success achieved in the past few years to create an expanded and more comprehensive organization dedicated to success of an even broader customer base."
