

Letter from the Chief Executive Officer

For more than 10 years, we have had the honor and pleasure to partner with the United States Government, providing distinctive professional solutions of every type.

We have teamed with companies of all sizes, in all industries – bringing them our unparalleled expertise, experience and employment service capabilities. We have also enjoyed offering our candidates and employees the opportunity to find success in today's competitive job market, along with the resources they need to stay on top by providing excellent benefits and a professional work environment.

I am incredibly proud of the team we have built. Our people are the best in the industry, and they're dedicated to continually improving the level of service we provide to our customers – going above and beyond to offer a uniquely personal touch.

We are already demonstrating this dedication by offering integrated solutions and products, including cutting-edge technology, additional on-site managed services and customized engineering solutions to the Department of Defense and other agencies of the Federal Government. Every day, from the war zones in Southwest Asia to the supporting logistics, engineering and training commands, we are making real contributions that positively affect the security of our Nation. No mission could be nobler or more fulfilling.

As we look toward the future, we recognize the growing necessity for capabilities and unique solutions to support our Air Force, Space, Joint, National Security, and Intelligence organizations, especially in a reduced operating budget environment. We remain committed to doing whatever it takes to meet and exceed the needs and expectations of our clients.

I would like to personally thank you for your interest in USfalcon, and I invite you to contact me at any time to discuss how we can help you reach your goals.

Best Regards,

Pete von Jess
